

Does it have to happen now?

If an individual doesn't want to get dressed or go to bed does it really matter? Even if it's something they need to do at some point, might it be less stressful for you both if you try again later?

